

The 'Fight or Flight' Response

The brain becomes aware of danger as a result of messages received from the senses. Hormones are released and the involuntary nervous system sends signals to various parts of the body which produce the changes found in this diagram.

